Joy McMicken

Milan's Osprey 12" x 9"

Joy was born and raised in Binghamton, NY, returning after 12 years of living in different states and in Europe. While in Europe; she traveled the countryside, visiting castles, chapels, museums, monasteries, churches and concentration camps ,while reveling in the splendid architecture, sculptures, fresco and paintings from centuries long past.

She graduated from Art Instruction School and continued her studies at American Intercontinental University for her BFA. She has studied from such fine artists as Fred J, Sklenar, Lauren Floden, Carlton J.Manzano, Sandra Angelo, Doreen Spoor, Matthew Archambault, Orazio Salati, Warren Thomas, Amy Williams McLaren, Patrick McPhee, Daniel Mosner, Joseph Q. Daily and Brian Keeler.

Joy spends quality time in her studio-located where she is able to socialize with other artists & the public. She participates in life drawing and has an en plein aire group meeting several times a month- returning to her studio with a variety of studies and usually with alla prima painting. Using a wide range of mediums, usually employing either oil or graphite, to explore color and contrast in a world where many people miss the opportunity to see the mysteries and magic all around us. Joy the honor of having her paintings in private collections on both coasts.
